THE first principal Object to the Left on an eminence, ca'l'd St. Edmund's Hill, is the new Seat of John Symonds Esquire, Recorder of BURY, L. L. D. and Professor of modern Languages in the University of CAMBRIDGE. Farther to the Right over the tops of the Ruins is seen RUSHBROOK Hall the noble Seat of Sir Charles Davers Bart. The Third distant Object in the centre of the Piece is HARDWICK House, the Seat of the Reverend Sir John Cullum Bart. formerly a Seat of the Lord Abbot, of Bury. The large Building exhibited directly under HARDWICK, is the Assembly House and the Space before it Angel-Hill, whereon the Fair is kept, so long noted for the Resort of Genteel Company. The Ruins and Portals, are the Remains of the famous Abby, founded Anno 1020 by Canutus the Great, who dedicated it to St. Edmund; He adorn'd it with various Royal Gifts, offer'd his own Crown to the Martyr, settled Benedictine Monks therein with an Abbot, endowed it with many large Manors, and lastly deposited the Holy King and Martyr aforesaid, in a Noble Shrine set with Jewels and precious Stones. Having received such Honours; the Abby rose by Degrees to a Splendor equall'd by few. There was a perpetual Resort of Strangers and Foreigners to the Place: excited by Curiosity, or Veneration. Many of the British Monarchs were also frequent Guests of the Monastery.

This was one of the Places, which the great Antiquary Mr. Leland visited by a Commission received under the Broad-Seal from King Henry the 8th; and whose words I shall transcribe as a lively Representation thereof
'A City more finely seated (faith he) the Sun hath not seen, so curiously, so delicately standeth it on an easie Ascent or hanging of an Hill. with an Abby so incomparably magnificent, that of itself it might be taken for a City, so many gates there are in it, Gates of Brass, so many Towers! and a Church than which nothing can be more stately, upon which as Appendages, attend three others, standing Gloriously in one and the same Church Yard, and all of Passing fine and curious Workmanship.'

This Abby remain'd Five Hundred and Nineteen Years, in possession of the Benedictines aforesaid, and was govern'd by Thirty three Abbots; the first of whom was Uvio, being constituted Abbot the same Year the Abby was founded (Viz.) 1020: And the last was John de Melford; who became Abbot Anno 1513, and govern'd the Abby 'till its Dissolution, when surrendering the same November the 4th. 1539, a Pension of 500 Marks per Annum, was settled on him, a Sum sufficient at that Time to have supported him in Affluence; but he did not live to enjoy it, for seeing the Destruction of his beautiful Monastery, it so affected him that he died soon Viz. on the 4th. of March following, and was buried in St. Mary's Church; his Character was that he was Learned, Affable and Upright, and the Examiners reported the Abby to be free from all Scandal; The King therefore intended making St. Edmund's Bury, a BISHOP's See, as may be seen in the COTTON Library in his own Hand writing, but alter'd his Purpose afterwards.

Lord Herbert in his History of King Henry the 8th. makes a Remark with a particular Eye to this Abby, 'The King (faith he) was petition'd by Bishop Latimer and others, that some few of the Houses for the Virtues of the Persons in them, and for the Benefit of the Country might be left for pious Uses. But the whole was Invaded; for besides the Houses and Lands taken away there was much Money to be made of the Stock of Cattle and Corn; of the Timber, Lead, Bells, &c. but chiefly of the Plate; and Church Ornaments, which though not Reckon'd may be conjectur'd by that one Monastery of St. Edmund's Bury, whence was taken Five thousand Marks of Gold and Silver, besides many precious Stones of great Value.'

The Church was accounted one of the largest in the WORLD, being Five Hundred and thirteen feet in length, and its Western Front Two hundred and forty feet broad. In it were inter'd, beside St. Edmund aforesam'd, Constantia Daughter of King William the Conqueror, and Richmond the Conqueror's Nephew, who shar'd the Command in the Battle of HASTINGS; he died Anno 1093 and was buried near the South Door before the Altar of St. Nicholas: Alan Earl of Britain, and Alan Niger Earl of Britain; Thomas Plantagenet or Thomas of Brotherton, Son of King Edward the first, Earl Marshal of ENGLAND, and Earl of NORFOLK; Thomas of Beaufort, Son of John of Guant, Duke of LANCASTER, and half Brother to King Henry the 4th, he died Anno 1424. Mary Queen of FRANCE, Sister to King Henry the 8th, was buried Anno 1533, on the South side of the high Altar; Robert the Martyr, who was crucified by the Jews: Sir William de Eltham Knight, Lord of BOWTHORPE, FRENCE, WESTHORPE, and INGOLDSTHORPE: Most of its Abbots were also here inter'd, in their pontifical Robes; Sir William Tressel, Sir William Spencer, John of Lydgate the famous Poet Monk of this Abby &c. &c. The Monuments erected in Memory of These, and other Persons of Distinction were most of them very Magnificent, but were soon after the Dissolution intirely demolish'd together with the Building. According to Speed, the Revenues of the Abby were reckon'd £2336. 16s. per Annum. The Churches of St. Mary, and St. James, seen in the Piece are very noble Structures. The first which was founded Anno 1004, is esteemed the largest Parish Church in ENGLAND, and is much admir'd for the lightness of its Pillars. St. James Church was Rebuilding at the time of the Dissolution of the Monastery, and afterwards compleated by the Munificence of King Edward the 6th, its singular neatness is very admirable.

The first Grand Tower or Gate was the Entrance to the Abbot's Palace, and is a Specimen of the Beauty, and Grandeur of the whole, being esteem'd one of the finest Pieces of Gothic Architecture in ENGLAND. The second Tower, with circular and arch Windows, is of very Ancient date being built before the Conquest, and much excite the Attention of the Curious; this (though now used as a Steeple,) was the Portal to the great Church of the Abby it is built of Massive Free-stone and Ornamented with carv'd Devices, &c.

N. B. It will be proper so to place the Picture as that the Eye be nearly on a Level with the Horizon, a more elevated situation would not produce so good an Effect.
